

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

TERRY L. ANDERSON is the Martin and Illie Anderson Senior Fellow at the Hoover Institution. Anderson also serves as executive director of the Political Economy Research Center (PERC) and is a professor emeritus of economics at Montana State University, both in Bozeman, Montana. He is the author or editor of twenty-four books, including Free Market Environmentalism, coauthored with Donald Leal, and The Not-So-Wild Wild West with Peter J. Hill. Anderson's work has helped launch the idea of free market environmentalism to encourage the stewardship of resources and market incentives to spur conservation and protection of the environment.

LAURA E. HUGGINS is a research fellow at the Hoover Institution, where she is currently conducting research for a book on population policy entitled Population Bomb: Myth or Reality? Prior to arriving at the Hoover Institution, Huggins served as a graduate fellow at PERC, where she wrote Reforming State Parks by Moving Toward Self-Sufficiency: A Practical Guide. Huggins also worked at the Institute of Political Economy, where she published "Innovative Government" in Controlling Costs by Contracting Services. She is primarily interested in the role of economic processes in shaping natural resource policy and in promoting market principles to a wide audience in order to help resolve environmental dilemmas.